A Tribute to the People Who Shaped a Century of Civil Aviation

As part of the Centenary of Civil Aviation, the Civil Aviation Authority brought together representatives of the aviation industry today to pay tribute to those who, over the course of a century, have contributed with professionalism and dedication to the development, safety, and modernization of civil aviation in the Republic of Moldova, whether by piloting aircraft or coordinating missions from the ground.

> Thank you for the effort, passion, and commitment with which you contribute, day after day, to the development of civil aviation. Thanks to you, this field continues to bring people together, create opportunities, and open new horizons.
>
> We wish you every success, inspiration, and the strength to carry forward—with the same dignity and professionalism—the tradition, values, and future of civil aviation.

